RED DEER AND LACOMBE TEACHERS' CONVENTION

A joint convention of the above instructors was held in the Central school on the 9th and 10th inst., when an interesting and instructive programme was read.

After the invocation by the Rev. Mr. Armstrong and felicitous addresses of welcome and replies thereto by His Worship Mayor Lord and Mr. R. L. Gaetz, Chairman of the School Board, and Messrs. Cartwright and Crumney, respectively, various committees were struck.

In the afternoon, the President, Miss Lees, gave a most inspiring address on "The Message to the Rural Schools." In beautiful English, and in a manner which showed that the speaker was herself an artist, she showed how the teacher brought to life the nobility and strength of the French peasant.

Miss Lees was followed by the Honorable G. P. Smith, Minister of Education, who prefaced his most interesting and inspiring address by the statement that no teacher could neglect his mission unless he understood the bigger problems that confronted the educationalists of the Province.

The Minister had the audience with him while he outlined some of the difficult problems that his department had to face and how he had overcome them, and concluded that he was determined to have a Union Jack flown by every school in the Province, not as a mere empty ceremony, but as a symbol of the appreciation of the convention those addresses by hearty applause.

The social side of life was not neglected, the evening being spent with music and dancing.

Miss Myrtle Smith opened the Friday session with a splendid talk, practically illustrated by her Junior class on the "First Six Weeks in Reading." This paper was of such interest to those who may have difficulty in starting little ones in school that it is hoped that it will be printed in a later issue.

Mr. E. H. Buehner, Inspector of Schools of the Lacombe district, followed with a very helpful talk on "Rural School Time-tables." The morning session was brought to a close by Mr. Grisdale, Principal of Old Agricultural School, who explained in an interesting manner how School Fairs are conducted.

Unfortunately Miss Edythe Jarvis was unable to read her paper on "History in the Public Schools," but her place was ably filled by Mr. Lohr, who gave an interesting discussion followed.

Next Fall's convention will be held in Lacombe under the following officers: Hon. Pres., Hon. G. P. Smith; Pres., Mr. G. M. Crawford, Alk.; 1st Vice-President, Mr. M. J. Gibson, Carleton Place; 2nd Vice-President, Mr. E. H. Buehner, Alk.; Sec., Miss J. Glass, Lacombe.

IDLE THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FARMER.

It is a pity that the Trades and Labor Congress have stopped at making a presentation on the subject of Irish Home Rule. It might have helped the situation greatly (especially as they are sure to know all about it), if they had given Italy instructions as to her attitude towards Anzio and Piumo and the U.S. Congress did respecting Mexico and lynching negroes.

I am often greatly edified to hear farmers denouncing the profiteer and his wicked ways. To hear the just wrath of the state of which he hears that city dweller pay, 60 c. a bushel for butter does him credit, especially when we realize that this wrath is not at better being 65 but at his only getting 50 for the same. It is so outrageous to think that the commission man, the wholesaler and the retailer should have the affront to divide 15 between them. Looking apart, there is no man at heart who is a greater profiteer than the average farmer. He has a chance very often. He doesn't make the prices for his produce; he has to take what he can get. When a farmer has the chance you generally find he makes it the highest possible.

If you live at a distance from an elevator, have a bunch of say, hogs to feed, and run out of grain, what happens if your neighbor has lots of grain. Can you buy it off him at the elevator price plus what it would cost you to go for it or nearly so, and so it is all along the line. Generally when a farmer has a corner on any commodity will boost the price to the limit. You may call it the law of supply and demand. I call it a latent desire to be a profiteer. For the same reason, when a farmer has a corner on a commodity will boost the price to the limit. You may call it the law of supply and demand. I call it a latent desire to be a profiteer.

PATRIOTIC SPIRIT IS BEHIND DRIVE

Nelson's Day Campaign of the Navy League Is For Canada's Benefit

A strong appeal to the patriotic spirit dominates the Nelson Day Campaign to raise half a million dollars to be spent in the Dominion under the auspices of the Navy League of Canada. Much of the proceeds of the drive which takes place October 21, 22, 23, will be devoted to the work of training Canadian lads for service on the seas.

The Navy League has already established Boys' Naval Brigades in the principal cities of the Dominion, and most encouraging results are being accomplished. Training is provided free to the boys who are being made into skilled seamen for the Merchant Marine. This will ultimately provide for the Canadian navy, and the Dominion's future must depend largely on getting surplus products to the world's markets and the Dominion must make her own sailors.

In addition to the needs of the Naval Brigades the Navy League has established sailors' homes and internment camps, and the league is required to maintain and extend this estimate work. All Canadians are called upon to make the Nelson Day Campaign a part of their week campaign last year.

The Soldier's Love for His Duty. By Grant Smith, Red Deer. The glory of a soldier, and a soldier's not a saint, is not in his duty, without grumbling or complaint; His work is not always pleasant, but he does it anyway, or shine.

And he grubs a bit of glory when he's fighting on the line. But the reason that he teaches every day to me and you is something that we do not like to do.

Any kind of chap can whistle, when his work is mostly fun. A hundred want the pleasant jobs to every sturdy one. That's the reason the dreary duty, the mean and lowly task, Or the drab and cheerless service that life often has to ask.

But somebody got to do it, and the task of me and you is the way to best the labor that we do not like to do.

Now it isn't very pleasant standing guard in the rear, But it's in the line of duty, and no soldier will complain. And there isn't any soldier but what sometimes takes his work.

When the day's parade is over perhaps he'd like to shrink. But he's there to follow orders, not to pick and choose his post. And he sometimes takes the brightest at the job he hates the most.

Let's be soldiers here at Halifax, let's be soldiers through and through. This life is going to give us duties that perhaps we'd hate to do. There'll be sacrifice and duty that will fall to us to take.

There'll be quickness, promptness, and force which we'll always have. And although we all would rather do the work that brings applause, Let's forget our whims and fancies and do "training" for the cause.

FRENCH HAVE ERECTED SIXTY THOUSAND HOMES IN BATTLE AREA. Paris, Oct. 10.—Capt. Andre Tardieu, member of the French parliament, speaking at a meeting of the French-American Club, gave interesting figures on the reconstruction work accomplished since the armistice. Sixty thousand of the 650,000 houses in the battle area, wrecked by shell fire have been rebuilt; 2,010 kilometers of the 2,216 kilometers of railway destroyed have been repaired and 700 of 1,575 kilometers of canals rendered useless in the 1,575 kilometers of the 1,575 kilometers destroyed by the enemy 588 have been repaired.

Equally remarkable progress is being made in restoring to cultivation the vast areas in the devastated area. The devastated area embraced 4,500,000 acres of the 4,500,000 acres of the 4,500,000 acres have been returned to the farmers, and 500,000 acres of it are ready for the seed. Ten million metres—over 600,000 metres of barbed wire have been dismantled and carried away in the operation.

Commissioner Tardieu added that a country which had lost nearly 2,000,000 million workers killed or incapacitated by war, which had been deprived by invasion of one-fifth of its productive capacity, and which nevertheless of its own efforts had accomplished such a showing as that cited above, has a right to rely on the help of the nations of the world to complete its economical and financial status.

"Mickey," at the Lyric Thursday and Friday nights, is one of the finest, most interesting and amusing pictures ever put on the screen. Be sure to see it.

THIS AND THAT

J.H.G. writes to the Advocate complaining of the awfulness of breathing other people's breath in public buildings in the city, and stating there are only two buildings, the Lyric and the Assembly Hall at the School well ventilated. J.H.G. is mistaken. The English Church is one of the best ventilated buildings in the city, and has these other boasted auditoriums beaten to it. Yes, sir, one could never catch anybody's breath in the English Church. Why it has never been duck pointed yet, and your breath moves so fast that you could never catch it, and greased lightning chasing a squirrel around a cross-grained hemlock, as Jack Bilsland would say, isn't it?

We understand there is to be a butchery in Red Deer in the near future. We wonder who?

W. W. Blair, of Condon, and family have moved to Red Deer, and taken up residence at Victoria Avenue.

Reg. Taylor and Cliff Malcolm went south for Thanksgiving. Cliff only thought it could possibly do to make the school, according to reports, last week. The young people left in the afternoon. Another man was summoned for not cleaning up his manure pile. The school is determined to keep Red Deer clean and wholesome.

Monday night, and not Friday, as advertised last week. A very interesting round of sports going on out west two weeks before the first of October shooting chicken. They got quite a bag. An farmer saw them and they hid the chickens when he appeared. They told him they had no luck, and as he stayed around, they left, determined to return for the game. The farmer nosed around and found the chickens, and hid them in another place, and you can imagine the hunters' consternation on returning to find the birds had disappeared. Better luck next time, boys.

Dr. Sanders returned from Ottawa a few days ago, where he was called owing to the death of his mother. He is now in the city, and is over 50 years of age. The doctor's father is still alive.

Farmers: Place the whole family in the motor car and attend the four excellent entertainments offered by the Red Deer Course which opens tomorrow night (Thursday) in the Methodist church. Only $5.00 for the entire course for the whole family.

K. M. Myers has sold his residence on Fifth St. North to Mr. Chas. White who resided to Mr. E. M. Smith, who has bought out the Cushing Bros. White has also purchased Mr. Myers' double house on Fourth St. North, corner Second Avenue East.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Frost have returned from Vancouver and are going to the farm on Monday evening. Frost was engaged with the Soldiers' Settlement Board at Vancouver, but the Coast climate was too hard on him. Mr. Frost was in the Canadian Bank in 1915, and became a prisoner of war, reaching Canada this year.

The engagement is announced of Gwyneth Millicent (Gwen) Walker, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Tom Walker, Red Deer, Alta., to William Frank Griffith, of the Canadian Bank Commerce staff, Edmonton, youngest son of Frank Griffith, Esq., Woking, Surrey, England. The marriage will take place shortly.

Shortly after ten o'clock Sunday night all lights went out, and power failed in the city. The cause was understood, in some foreign matter getting into the pumps, causing a temporary stoppage. The difficulty was remedied as speedily as possible and power was again on in the early morning.

Some eight cases of scarlet fever developed with great suddenness in Red Deer about ten days ago. No new cases have developed and only one case was very serious. All the cases are well in hand, but every precaution should be taken by citizens to prevent the spread of the dread disease.

W. T. Coote is leaving Red Deer to go into business in Leduc with his brother Geo. G. Coote, of Nanton. They have purchased the old establishment which has been owned by Dermott and Beggs in that town. Mr. and Mrs. Coote will be missed in Red Deer. Mr. Coote has been connected with the business of the city and has taken a leading part in Masonry, in the Agricultural Society, Horticultural Society, and in Church work. He was a good cutter and will also be missed by the boys. We wish them success in their new home.

TWO LOCKETS

The steamer "Newcastle" was just leaving port carrying two little girls and their parents to India. Margaret Norwood and Dorothy King, fifteen and fourteen respectively and had been inseparable since they were able to walk.

"Isn't it just too grand!" exclaimed Margaret as they stood on deck with their arms twined about each other. "I'm so glad your father decided to come this boat instead of waiting for the next."

"I shouldn't have enjoyed myself one bit if I hadn't come with you, Margaret," replied Dorothy.

They were both sick the first day of the voyage, but woke up well the next morning. The sea was very rough, however, and continued to get worse. The sailors went about their usual routine with anxious faces. As the day went on a fog gathered, the waves continued to dash and roar, and by evening a gale had arisen.

At midnight the ship struck a rock and all on board were ordered into the lifeboats. In the panic Margaret and Dorothy had been separated, but now by some providential arrangement, they found themselves in the same boat. Dorothy was nearly fainting when Margaret caught her in her arms and whispered, "Dorothy, keep up for my sake," and they huddled together in the bottom of the boat.

After half an hour of floating in awestruck silence, Dorothy said faintly, "Margaret darling, I feel as if I won't see each other again for a long time. Take my locket and keep it forever. You won't forget me, Margaret?"

"No, dear," and she fastened her own locket about the fainting Dorothy's neck.

Then, without any warning whatever, the boat capsized, and Dorothy knew nothing until she felt two strong arms holding her, while a motherly face bent over her.

"Oh, where am I? Margaret! Mother!" she cried excitedly.

But Dorothy never saw her mother after that. The fisherman—for it was a fisherman who found her—and his wife adopted her. She had been washed on the lonely island where they lived, and as they had no children of their own, they decided to keep her.

Dorothy grew to love the kindly fisherman and his motherly little wife as parents. But she often wondered where the friend of her childhood was. The sea had a strange fascination for her. She would sit for hours on the beach gazing far out to sea, and whenever a ship would pass, a slightly disappointed look could be seen on her face as if she were saying to herself, "Perhaps Margaret is on that ship and she is going away from me."

Every day she prayed that if Margaret were still alive she would see her, and somehow, when she looked at the beautiful sweet face in the locket, she could not quite give up hope.

Her foster-father used to go on short voyages, and on one of these he had heard that Dorothy's father and mother had been drowned and that Margaret's mother had died. But Dorothy had heard nothing.

It was now six years since the wreck. Dorothy was a young woman much changed in features, still possessing the same sorrowful brown eyes—a little more sorrowful than at fourteen.

After her foster mother and father were getting old, and having enough money by this time to live comfortably, they sailed for Liverpool, taking Dorothy with them. She had said farewell to the island she loved, standing on the deck as she had done six years before, until it disappeared over the horizon.

They settled in a pretty little village outside Liverpool and within a year Dorothy was happily married. Later, when a little brown-eyed dark-haired fairy played about their fireplace Dorothy used to wonder if one bearing the name of "Dorothy" lived baby prayers at the knee of Margaret Norwood.

"Margaret King Richards," replied the child evidently pleased with herself at knowing her full name.

"And whose locket is that?" "Mamma taught me to say 'that's the other Margaret's locket'."

"Father, it must be Dorothy's child! Oh, can I believe that she is still alive?" "Little one, will you take as to your mother?" the gentleman asked.

"Oh father! this is Dorothy's birthday! I must—Oh, I can't believe that I have found her at last!" Little Margaret led them to the door. "Mamma, the lady wants to see you," she said, but before she could finish, Dorothy and the other Margaret were locked in each other's embrace.

"Oh, Margaret, I felt that you would come back to me sometime," she heard her mother say, but Margaret could do nothing but sob.

Then they talked of all the long years they had been separated. Margaret and her father had been picked up and taken to India where they spent years in search of Dorothy and at last gave her up for dead.

"She looks just like you, dear Margaret. The same sweet face with the soft grey eyes and golden hair—just like the picture in the locket you gave me," commented Dorothy.

"Just think, if it hadn't been for the lockets, we might never have seen each other again!" returned Margaret with a shudder.

IRISH HOME RULE

BILL IS READY
Cabinet Putting the Finishing Touches on Legislation Framed Somewhat on Canadian Federation

London, Oct. 7.—Parliamentarians say the Irish bill will be the feature of the new session of parliament and the cabinet is now considering one drafted on lines of Dominion home rule but with suggested alterations that any county may stand out of Ulster counties be all included and have their own soldiers.

HAS ONLY SHORT TIME
The government's Irish policy is rapidly taking shape under the pressure of recently developed circumstances which surprised the cabinet.

The cabinet went about their usual routine with anxious faces. As the day went on a fog gathered, the waves continued to dash and roar, and by evening a gale had arisen.

At midnight the ship struck a rock and all on board were ordered into the lifeboats. In the panic Margaret and Dorothy had been separated, but now by some providential arrangement, they found themselves in the same boat.

YOUNG WINTER STRIKES SOUTHERN ALBERTA

West of Calgary Snow Reported Which Fell Heavier As Mountain Region Is Reached

Calgary, October 8.—Heralded by a terrific wind from the northwest, winter swept down upon central and southern Alberta Tuesday night, and Calgary thermometers dropped from summer to winter temperature in a few hours.

The astonishing meteorological change is well illustrated by the official readings on the instruments in the city hall's laboratory at the city hall. At 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the thermometer registered 70 degrees above zero. At midnight it had dropped to 47, and when the wind really reached the height of a tempest at 1 a.m., the thermometer began to slide down like a toboggan.

By 3:30 o'clock Wednesday morning the instrument registered 22 above zero, or ten degrees of frost, and was still going down.

SUDDEN TRANSITION
The sudden transition from the balmy days of Indian summer to the frigidty of winter was marked over the whole southern area of Alberta.

The storm came from the British Columbia border east to Saskatchewan and from north of Edmonton to the international boundary.

Continuously enough, the centre of the cold wave seems to be over Calgary, as at 3:30 o'clock this morning, C.P.R. dispatches stated that a heavy rain was falling in Edmonton at that hour.

Medicine Hat reported strong west winds and a rain storm, while west from Calgary to Field, B.C., it was snowing. The snow storm grew heavier nearer to the mountains, and just west of Calgary from three to four inches of snow fell on the level early this morning, but drifted into huge drifts along fences and in the depressions of the hills.

WINDS AT LETHBRIDGE
Lethbridge reported terrible winds, but no rain or snow at an early hour this morning.

Rege from points within the areas embraced by Field, Edmonton, Calgary, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge also emphasized the terrible winds and reported more or less snow. Up to date no special damage has been reported and none of the railway or telegraph companies had trouble with their wires.

Most of the trains entering the city were from a few minutes to half an hour late, due to the high cold winds, but the delays in no instance were sufficient to interfere with service.

Victory Loan 1919 Campaign Has Started

The Southern Alberta Victory Loan campaign is off to a good start. All committees have been appointed, and the campaign has been commenced. Southern Alberta is being aided by glory by subscribing nearly nine million dollars to last year's loan. This year it is expected to reach six and one-half million dollars, and it will go over the top.

In some places owing to poor crops, people may think themselves unable to subscribe to Victory Loan, 1919, but that is a mistake. A man may be too hard up to subscribe as much as he would like to, but in this country he cannot be too hard up to subscribe at all. Therefore, the thing that is to be considered is not "Can I subscribe?" but "How much can I subscribe?"

There are very many reasons for subscribing to the Victory Loan. In the first place, it will help the returned soldiers. In fact, the plan for helping the returned soldiers could not go on without the Victory Loan. Every returned soldier should be an enthusiastic booster for the Victory Loan, because without it they would be in a very bad way.

It will help trade. Every farmer should be a booster for the Victory Loan, for upon it depends the sale of his crop at the good price he is getting. If the Victory Loan fails, the crop movement must cease; if the Victory Loan succeeds the crop will move out and the money will move in.

It will increase prosperity. Canada has subscribed about a billion dollars to its own Victory Loans, and it has put over a billion dollars in the bank savings throughout the Dominion. Every citizen is expected to contribute to the Victory Loan. It is the only money with one hand and taking it back with the other in increased business, and having the bonds as well.

The Victory Loan has no politics. Following is a letter from Hon. MacKenzie King, leader of the Liberal party, to Sir Henry Drayton, minister of finance, in which the campaign is urged on behalf of the loan. A dispatch from Ottawa says: "My dear Sir Henry: 'I am pleased to join you in commending the Victory Loan to the people of Canada.' It is imperative that Canada's credit should be maintained. It is in every way desirable that the amount raised within Canada itself. I hope, therefore, that this loan may be over-subscribed by citizens of the Dominion. 'As the government finds that borrowing is a necessity to meet existing conditions, it is in every way desirable that the amount raised within Canada itself. I hope, therefore, that this loan may be over-subscribed by citizens of the Dominion. In expressing a desire to see the loan a success, such obligation as I may have in the matter of raising unnecessary or extravagant public expenditure is increased rather than lessened; and that this endorsement is given upon your assurance that the organization of the campaign raised everything about it is absolutely and entirely non-political.'"

Yours sincerely, "W. MACKENZIE KING." Subscribe to the Victory Loan, work for it, and put your district at the head of the list this year.

ENDLESS PERSECUTION OF ARMENIA IS GRADUALLY WIPING OUT THE RACE

The whole of Christendom once marched through Armenia to recover the supposed site of the Holy Sepulchre and the unknown place of the Cross; but massacre after massacre of Christians by the million in that country have found Christendom disinterested and helpless. Persecutions for a century back have attracted the sympathy of Europe just enough to evoke against the victims the bitter spite of their Moslem neighbors, who regarded them as a menace to their religion. Deliberate and planned massacres, which commenced a quarter of a century ago, have still found Christian countries powerless, as no nation could act without incurring the jealousy of the rest. Britain convened what was called the Concert of Europe to bring pressure to bear. Germany refused to concur, thus becoming a partner in Turkey's guilt, for which she reaped the reward later of having Turkey as a partner in hers. Russia was one of the protesting parties, but as, through the whole reign of Alexander III, the bigot disciple of Pobiedonostoff, she had herself persecuted the Armenians in the region she had acquired from Turkey, she refused to concur in anything more than the protection of foreigners. Nothing was done except some relief work, chiefly from the United States, which has for nearly a century had missions among the Armenians. Today this massacring is going on, the race is getting wiped out, and nothing is really being done. Britain has an army in Russian Armenia, but owing to popular demand could not act without withdrawing it. The United States has been asked to become mandatory in Armenia of the prospective League of Nations; but not having as yet approved the league, has not done so. France wants to be, but help delays, and murder and rapine go on under peace with as much hand as under war.—Montreal Witness.

WOMEN HAVE INVADED INDUSTRIAL REALM AND NEED RIGHTS
Ottawa.—"Conditions of the past few years having forced thousands of women into the industrial field, with the result that there is not likely to be a return to the old order of things, the women of Canada should demand equal pay for equal work," was the subject for a stirring appeal made at the meeting of the Local Council of Women by Mrs. Ralph Somers, A. of Vancouver, B.C. Women's part in the industrial life of Canada during the war and since was considered.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Lecture at Red Deer by C. I. Ohrenstein, C.S.B.

The auditorium of the Methodist church was well filled on Tuesday last week to hear an interesting and helpful lecture from Mr. Charles I. Ohrenstein, C.S.B., of Syracuse, N.Y., a Christian Science practitioner for over twenty years, and a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, Boston, Mass. A lot of people had driven in from the country, some 20 to 25 miles.

Mr. George P. Simons, who made an efficient chairman, in introducing the lecturer, said: Recent events in the world's history point so conclusively to the universality of the law that today humanity is reaching for a better understanding of higher law. A great wave of desire for a working knowledge of the universal law of life is directing the thoughts of thousands of men and women into a careful study of Divine metaphysics.

Throughout all ages spiritual law has been an exact scientific entity. It is just as available and just as efficacious today as it was nineteen centuries ago.

The entire foundation and structure of Christian Science is spiritual law. Whence have we received our manner of healings through an application of the principle it teaches. We are here tonight for the purpose of learning something of the teachings of Christian Science.

With a sincere sense of gratitude for this opportunity, I introduce to you Mr. Charles I. Ohrenstein, C.S.B., of Syracuse, New York, member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

Mr. Ohrenstein said men were seeking satisfaction because of their urgent needs. Christian Science was not popular, but it helped in the understanding of God. Probably no idea took possession of the human thought during recent years like that of the need of preparedness, safety, and efficiency; and certainly these factors are indispensable for achievement or success of any kind. Every activity has been spurred by this idea. The home, the school, the playground, the factory, the office—all have been and are aflame with it. Preparedness, safety, efficiency may be said to have been inscribed upon the mental banner leading all endeavor.

The preparedness, safety, efficiency of Jesus were the result of his demonstrable knowledge, the Science of being, which constituted his Christianity. This Christianity was no mere ceremonialism or belief. It was the science of living and of living more abundantly; the science of health, of peace, of blessedness; the science that made Jesus the Saviour, deliverer, redeemer, the science which he came to teach mankind. In a word, it was the understanding of God, the supreme power, that is all good and always with us.

Must not we then in order to be Christians, to benefit by this Christianity, gain this understanding of God? Must not we ask who or what is this God of whom Jesus had such intimate, exact knowledge or science?

Jesus, the lecturer pointed out, defined God as strength or power, and spirit. Hence Christian Science from Jesus' teachings defined God thus: "God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love." (Science and Health, p. 465).

Not only did Jesus illustrate, not only does Christian Science teach what God is, but in doing this Jesus illustrated and Christian Science teaches what man is.

Does not the father want the son to be like himself, and does not a son want to be like his father? So true is this, that right in the beginning we read that "God created man in his own image"—male and female created him." In other words, Now, how do we know what a man is like? Do we not know it by what he expresses? What is not the manifestation, the expression of the power, the Mind, the Spirit, the Life, the Truth, and the Love, which are altogether good, God, that made Jesus the best prepared, the safest, the most efficient, the most able or powerful, the most godlike man that ever lived? Did it not make him so godlike that all Christians have called him God, worshipped him as God? It has done this, notwithstanding the fact that Jesus rebuked the man for enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." To be the image of God, then, is to be the son of God. To be the other kind of man is to be like those of whom Jesus rebuked when he said, "Ye are of your father the devil," which is destructive, and "a liar," that in which there is no truth.

All Christians have certainly called Jesus their pattern and their guide; he is the image of himself, the image of the truth, and the life. All Christians are also instructed, "Let this mind be in you, which was in Christ Jesus." If this teaching be correct, should not every Christian claim for himself, what he sees in Christ Jesus? Intelligence, Life, Truth, and Love which constitute the one true good of all, eternal, indestructible, incapable of impairment, loss, or lack? And should not every one disclaim a limited material power, mind, life, truth, love, subject to disease, decay, and death? Can one be a Christian without claiming the former and disclaiming the latter?

After showing how the beginner in this belief would be helped to overcome his limitations by the truth of God and Jesus which Christian Science teaches, the lecturer dwelt on the power of education which were children, not of flesh and blood, but of our education, and it is that which we constantly express and live out.

Now, suppose that we not only learn the letter, but become imbued with the spirit of what has been said, and so learn the truth that the kind of God which has been indicated here, is the man or woman, who is like God, the reflection or image and likeness of God; suppose, when we have done this even in the smallest degree, we always ask of this very primary education, What belongs to us, any one of us, as Jesus said, "What belongs to the image and likeness of God? Could we not get correct answers? What for instance belongs to the reflection of power, infinite power? Do powerlessness, inability, incapacity? What belongs to the reflection of Mind? Lack of purpose, lack of will, and ignorance of what we need to know? What belongs to the reflection of divine Spirit, infinite Truth, Love, Life? Do sensualism, untruthfulness, fear, lack of understanding, lack of vision, death? Would not the truth about what man is and what man has be just the opposite of all such claims, and not Jesus say, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free?"

After emphasizing the duty of man, in the image of God, to have the assurance that he should claim the high privileges in his life and conduct of the sons and daughters of God, Mr. Ohrenstein went on to elaborate the thought processes of God and man, and the power man had over his thoughts. What belongs to the reflection of divine Spirit, infinite Truth, Love, Life? Do sensualism, untruthfulness, fear, lack of understanding, lack of vision, death? Would not the truth about what man is and what man has be just the opposite of all such claims, and not Jesus say, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free?"

If God is the all-embracing power, and God is Mind, the operation of this power must primarily be by way of ideas, thoughts. Who can straighten out his finger or hand without thought dictating the action? Who can bend it when thought dictates to hold it straight? Try it. Will the hand not do kind things under the influence of loving thought? Will it not do cruel things under the impulse of contrary beliefs? Will it not do brave, powerful things under the influence of things under the direction of confident, intelligent guidance, and a trembling, weak, inefficient things under the influence of fear? All have experienced this. Is it not a common saying that one is paralyzed with fear? Do not people die of fear? Does any part of anything or feel any way? If it does, how do you know it without thought? The schools are beginning to recognize, and in some degree to acknowledge, that in Christian Science a light has come into the world, but they are not able to see that it is all light, and that in it is no darkness at all. They are beginning to teach that mind is at least in part cause, but without recognizing that Mind is God, good, so never the cause of disease and death, but always the cause of restoration, of health, of life. They call that mind which is not false education, illusion, suggestion, the ultimate cause of sin, sickness, death. But the human beliefs that still obscure cannot forever hide the true power which shines, and shines into a perfect day when all shall be illumined by it, and there shall be no darkness, fear, and so no sin, no disease, no death.

Which has been said will but dimly indicate the teachings of the ideal, yet most practical and scientific system of ethics and healing discovered in the words and works of our Master by Mrs. Eddy. Through her faithful, loving, Christlike leadership, Mrs. Eddy founded this system, Christian Science, and advanced it to its present world-wide acceptance. Bringing what she did to the world—the "pearl of great price," the apostle, demonstrated the Christlike leadership, Mrs. Eddy found it itself such by comforting, reforming and healing the vast majority of those who have honestly, earnestly studied her books—she has enriched the world beyond all reckoning.

PREVENTION OF TUBERCULOSIS CONVENTION.

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—The Canadian Association for the prevention of tuberculosis opened its nineteenth annual convention at the Chateau Laurier today with the presentation of the secretary's report for the year by Dr. George D. Porter, of Toronto, and an interesting paper on "The X-ray in tuberculosis" by Dr. Harold M. Logell. The address was illustrated by lantern slides. More than a hundred delegates were present from various provinces in the dominion, and a number from New England states. In his report Dr. Porter referred to a number of new sanatoria and other institutions for the treatment of tuberculosis, established during the year. Important measures have been taken by the department of agriculture to guard against contamination of milk. Great advances have been made by the department of soldiers civil establishment in providing, in conjunction with the University of Toronto research department, for the carrying out of serological tests on both military and civil cases. Educational posters have been distributed.

TREATY IS RATIFIED BY ITALY

KING VICTOR EMMANUEL SIGNS ROYAL DECREE ON TWO DOCUMENTS

Paris, October 1.—King Victor Emmanuel of Italy signed a royal decree ratifying the German and Austrian treaties yesterday, according to a Milan dispatch to the Eclair. Ratification of the German treaty by the royal decree of the King of Italy virtually completes the steps necessary for putting into effect the pact between Germany and the Allied powers which was signed at Versailles on June 28, and which stipulated it would become operative when ratified by three of the great powers. The British parliament has already ratified the treaty, and the document now awaits only the signature of King George before becoming effective in Great Britain. Approval was given the convention by the French chamber of deputies last week, and the senate is now expected to take similar action on Friday or Saturday. The royal decree of the Italian monarch must receive approval from the next parliament, which will meet at Rome on December 1, but it is considered certain there will be little trouble in securing concurrence.

Italy, by the reported action of her king, is the first of the powers to ratify the treaty with Austria.

AUSTRALIA AWAITS TERMS REGARDING PACIFIC ISLANDS.

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 7.—Until the Australian government is informed definitely regarding the terms of the mandate under which it will administer the former German possessions in the Pacific, it will not make any allotment of land there for prospective settlers. A decision has been reached by the commonwealth authorities, following requests from the returned soldiers and sailors' imperial league, for holdings in the Pacific Islands.

The Navy League of Canada

Its Vital Work for Canada

THE Navy League of Canada fosters the splendid spirit that made the British the greatest of maritime nations. It organizes loyal Canadians so that practical work may be accomplished for the development of Canada's direct interests at sea.

The human side of Canada's Mercantile Marine is the League's special interest—training Canadian boys to become the sturdy type of British manhood that won its laurels again and again in the great war—relieving distress among victims of the submarine warfare—and giving the sailor ashore an alternative place for rest and recreation to the places of doubtful entertainment that abound in port.

Why the $500,000 is needed

On Nelson Day, October 21st, starts a 3-day campaign throughout the Dominion to raise $500,000 necessary to finance the coming year's work of the Navy League of Canada. Help the work by giving liberally. As a nation whose expanding trade will depend on exports, we must educate our boys to the highest type of seamanship so that they will be equipped to man our ships to carry our exports to foreign markets.

You will do your part in this work by contributing liberally to the support of the Boy's Navy Brigades, the organizations by which the Navy League trains boys for our merchant marine.

Every dollar subscribed will be used to further the work of the Navy League in Canada—the work in which you are personally interested as a patriotic citizen. Help by giving.

PAY $75,000,000 FOR BOND INTEREST

Approximately $75,000,000 is paid out yearly to the people of Canada in the form of interest on domestic war loans.

If the people could be induced to make these interest payments serve as the basis of an extra investment in Victory Bonds the 1919 Loan would have an important assurance of success.

On the first day of November in the middle of the Victory Loan, 1919 campaign an interest payment of $8,500,000 will be made, and on December 1, a $14,250,000 payment on another bond issue will be paid out.

A man receiving on interest cheques of say about one hundred dollars could very well put it back as the first payment on a $1000 bond. The other instalments could be saved for somehow.

FOR FARMER CANDIDATES.

The contest which is going on in Ontario is described fairly well by the Montreal Witness, but we do not think the farmers are particular as to the political complexion of the party opposed, whether he is a Liberal or a Conservative.

The Witness has always been a supporter of Liberalism, and its remarks are more forceful and to the point on that account.

You cannot fool all the people all the time. The Liberal party got into power on a low tariff issue, but they did not reduce the tariff two per cent the sixteen years they were in power.

Sir Robert Borden and the Union government has reduced the tariff more than has been done since McKenzie went out of power in 1878.

We have got to raise money to run the country, and no better means has up to this time been devised than by a tariff to do it, unless we resort to direct taxation, and the people at present have been experiencing a little of direct taxation, which we fancy will give them all the experience they desire along this line.

The farmers of Ontario a quarter of a century ago rose in their might and elected a number of their party to the legislature.

They, however, were absorbed by the Liberal party and the patrons of the industry went to smash. If the farmers party will keep to themselves and do not affiliate with either party they will become a power in the land.

Perhaps they will learn wisdom by past experience and do this. The Witness says:

"The farmers' organization has drawn its strength largely from a sense that the Liberals did not, when in power, carry through the Liberal platform. A large part of their strength today is not the dissatisfaction with the Liberal platform, as we draw up, but their doubt that it will ever be made effective if the Liberals get into power. They seem to have reached this conclusion not only by arguing from the past, but by the expression of a number of prominent Liberals who deem the tariff plank in the platform too radical and consequently speak of the platform as a thing to be modified. But what has drawn out the strongest dividing line between the two factions seems to be that the farmers insist on farmers as representatives. The practice has been for the Liberal party to leave each constituency to choose its own representative by a local convention. This has had the result of giving the nomination to lawyers, notaries and doctors or business men in too many cases, they being the most facile speakers, and best intriguers. It is surprising how many constituencies in which four out of five of the voters are farmers have nominated and elected professional and business men instead of men of their own calling. It is natural to say that these conventions have acted as they wished in making their choice, but that may not be the whole truth. It is quite possible that these conventions would have been more pleased had there been a rule that no one but a farmer should be chosen. Such a restriction is sometimes more a liberty than a bondage. It is not yet plain what the Liberal party is going to do about this position. At the present time it looks to be its stumbling block on the way to power at the next election. But it is a very big stumbling block, and if the Liberal party does not in some way win back the Ontario agriculturalists it has a rocky road ahead."

AERIAL MEN MEET IN AIR DURING RACE

B. W. MAYNARD, THE "FLYING PARSON," IS HUNDREDS OF MILES AHEAD OF OTHER FLIERS.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Eastbound and westbound fliers met in the air at North Platte, Nebraska, today, in the transcontinental reliability race and tonight Lieutenant B. W. Maynard, the "flying parson," was at Cheyenne.

Two, hundreds of miles ahead of the other westbound fliers, who met Captain L. Smith, well in the lead of the contingent from the west, was at Omaha for the night.

Maynard, pilot machine N.C.-31, left Chicago at 7:09 a.m. central time, and flew 886 miles today, 76 miles more than he covered yesterday in sailing from New York to Chicago.

But his time, chiefly due to adverse winds and weather conditions, in one form or another, extending almost from coast to coast, was slower.

He landed at Cheyenne at 6:25 p.m. mountain time, having covered a total distance of 1,696 miles in two days.

Captain Smith, after struggling through three mountain snow storms, and over three mountain ranges, reached Omaha at 7:20 o'clock tonight, having made 852 miles today with out accident. His total distance since the start at San Francisco is 1,460 miles.

The remarkable flights of Maynard and Smith for two days have made the transcontinental race a record event in this country.

At the close of today's flights, the forty nine starters from Minola and the fifteen which left San Francisco, were strung out across the country, most of them accounted for. Two machines from the West, No. 50, piloted by Second Lieutenant Hall, and another driven by Second Lieutenant Queens were missing tonight. It is feared that they were lost in the big mountain storms.

THE SNOW STORMS.

We will then have an insight into the eternal life. This is life eternal, to know Thee, the only true God and Jesus Christ, whom Thou hast sent."

We shall not then be time-servers, but citizens of eternity, guided by principles which eternally endure, and finally we shall share in the suffering of the Master, sacrificing personal comfort and pleasure to the requirements of duty.

"For all through life there runs a cross. Where sons of men yield up their breath: There is no gain except by loss; There is no life, except by death."

Sacrifice is the price, the inevitable price of progress. The sacrifice of the cross is not a trend mill experience. The gain achieved through it is not to be converted. It should never again be necessary for men to suffer and to die to make secure these ends for which men are dying.

But to make gains universal, and to make real in every life the spirit of freedom and righteousness is a task which still demands of us our highest and best.

NEWS WEEKLY SERMON

By REV. GEO. D. ARMSTRONG

That I may know Him and the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His sufferings, being made conformable to His death.—Phil. 3: 10.

The letter of St. Paul to the Philippians church gives to us a very clear insight into the spirit of his life, the friendships he formed and the ideals and purposes which, swayed him.

In striking contrast with the racial pride, religious bigotry and sociological ambitions of his early manhood, is the humility, the toleration, the brotherly kindness and the yearning desire to be Christlike which characterizes his maturer years.

He had found in the Cross of Christ a revelation of the love which satisfied his conception of divine justice. It met the need of his moral nature for the forgiveness of his sin. It revealed the love of God in its fullness and life-giving power. It emancipated his mind from its earlier misconceptions and set forth an ideal of life, which appealed to the best that was in him.

It gave poise and purpose to his life—a confidence that life would succeed in the most soul satisfying sense in which that term can be used, and a true sense of life's real values. In the experience which tried his faith, which tested his physical and moral energy, as well as his intellectual, he pursued his course, the personality of Jesus and the Master's way of living were his guide and inspiration. If the church is to succeed in the mission which is distinctly hers; if Christianity is to be a vital experience in our individual lives; if the world is to have new experience of the redeeming, uplifting power of the gospel; these things will be accomplished only as we make the experience of the apostle our own.

Dr. S. D. Chown in a recent article in the Christian Guardian sets forth very clearly the significance of the Forward Movement to a soul-lifting, spiritual upheaval that will intensify the whole tone of Christianity and clothe it with new aspects of victory. It is no piecemeal make-shift. Its object is to make God's people as good as His grace and power can make them. It is to lift the common life of the people up to the apostolic level, and make all believers prophets. It is to turn prophecy into reality; to make bare the arms of the Lord in the eyes of all nations, that all the ends of the earth may see the salvation of our God. It is to bring to pass a new heaven and a new earth; the holy city coming down from God out of heaven clothed in spiritual beauty as a bride is adorned for her husband. It is to make Christianity at its core and foundation for it, and to put into full practice the science of living. Hitherto a remnant has salted the church; now the whole church is to be salted to save the whole world. It is to make more than imperial thinking; it means thinking as Christ thought, in terms of the Cosmos. It calls us to realize that the resurrection of the power of primitive Christianity is the only adequate impulse and guide in the reconstruction of disordered society in this new time; and to come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty forces which now obscure the high purposes of God.

These are stirring times, they arrest our attention and challenge us to thought and action. If we are to respond to them we need a vivid sense of the relationship of Jesus to us all. It is not enough that we formally recognize Him as Divine, we must realize in a vital personal way, the meaning of the Divine life manifested in Him. We must walk in His footsteps, taking an attitude toward life such as His, and dominated by the principles which controlled His being.

We will then have an insight into the eternal life. This is life eternal, to know Thee, the only true God and Jesus Christ, whom Thou hast sent."

We shall not then be time-servers, but citizens of eternity, guided by principles which eternally endure, and finally we shall share in the suffering of the Master, sacrificing personal comfort and pleasure to the requirements of duty.

"For all through life there runs a cross. Where sons of men yield up their breath: There is no gain except by loss; There is no life, except by death."

Sacrifice is the price, the inevitable price of progress. The sacrifice of the cross is not a trend mill experience. The gain achieved through it is not to be converted. It should never again be necessary for men to suffer and to die to make secure these ends for which men are dying.

But to make gains universal, and to make real in every life the spirit of freedom and righteousness is a task which still demands of us our highest and best.

A DIALOGUE

Alan MacDonald, unceremoniously opened the Burrows kitchen door and walked in, one arm piled high with assorted groceries. Barbara Burrows, washing dishes at the sink, looked up. "You may put them on the table," she said, and went on with her task.

Alan did as he was told, then walked half way across the room toward Barbara. As that young lady seemed absorbed in her toil, he queried, somewhat diffidently, "Have a good time at the dance last night, Barbara?" and received a chilly polite "Yes, thank you," in reply.

"I met Adrian Appleby down by the big oak tree; he was on his way home." The boy shifted from one foot to the other, uneasily. "Did you?" the girl returned without apparent interest, washing the same dish a second time.

"Yes. Seen him this morning?" "No," answered Barbara, with just a suspicion of a tremble in her voice.

"I say, Bab," Alan came a step nearer—"why not be honest about it? You had a rotten time at that dance, and you know it. I was outside, looking in." Barbara took her hands from the dish-water and turned to him with flaming cheeks.

"What right have you, Alan MacDonald, to be spying on me? It's none of your affair, anyway, whether I had a good time or not!" and the exceedingly indignant girl again picked up the platter she had already washed twice.

"Oh, I'm not wanted around here any more. But you'll never see your sweet friend again. That's what I stopped to tell you." Alan grinned triumphantly. "And he boasted of being an athlete, too—him!" Barbara did not see the grin, but something in the contemptuous voice made her turn again. "What do you mean, Alan?"

"I saw him off on the first train this morning—bid him a kind farewell. He's going to spend the rest of his vacation somewhere else. He won't sport around in that particular ruff, wasp-waist checked suit any more. Oh, he's a sweet-looking thing now—he is!"

"If you've got anything you want to tell me, I wish you'd get it out—I'm busy." Barbara was striving hard to appear not at all interested, and scraped more industriously than was necessary at the bottom of a kettle.

"I wasn't spying on you. When you throw me down and accepted the invitation of that cad, if I'd had any sense at all I'd never have wanted to see you again." Alan paused gloomily, then continued: "But I'm not the only man who has made a fool of himself over a woman that didn't appreciate him. I haven't got such good clothes as Appleby, and I haven't been to college, either, but if they teach you there to take a girl to a dance and then let her sit out most of the time while you dance with some other girl because she's dressed more stylish—why, I'm glad I didn't go, that's all. It's a wonder he had the decency to see you home."

"It's a wonder you wouldn't have the decency to quit trying to rub it into me!" Barbara flung back. "Your room would be more acceptable than your company in this kitchen just at present, any way."

Alan deliberately took his time. "Oh, I just met him down by the big oak tree after he left you last night, and took the occasion to tell him exactly what I thought of him—that's all."

Barbara waited, but as no more detailed explanation seemed to be forthcoming, she was forced to lower her dignity a notch to ask, "But why has he let you?"

This time the girl saw the slow grin which spread over Alan's countenance. "Adrian Appleby may think he's some swell, and that he can walk into this town and take any fellow's girl he wants away from him—and then treat her like a tramp and make slighting remarks about her—but he's got another thing coming to him when he thought he could play that trick on me—and you!" Again Alan paused and smiled contentedly, and Barbara, too interested now to pretend further indifference, urged: "What did he say? What did you do to him, Alan?"

"He called you a country Jane—that's what he did. And I didn't do much to him but mop up the ground with him, spill that kippie suit and give him a black eye. I told him if he didn't leave town this morning I'd lick him again. He went, all right!"—contemptuously—"his kind never puts up a fight."

Barbara took her hands from the dish-washer and began to dry them on a towel. Alan watching the operation closely. Then raising her eyes to Alan's face and dropping them again quickly, she perceived for the first time that one of the boy's hands was wrapped in a bandage. Alan hadn't exactly concealed his honorable scars, but Barbara had not really looked at him until now.

Hastily the overworked towel was cast away, and the girl was at the side of her defender, solicitously examining the injured hand. "Oh, Alan, did Appleby do it? Is it hurt badly?" "No. The cur just dug his teeth into it a ways—it's his idea of fair fighting." The boy tried to look very unconcerned over the fuss being made over his scars of battle.

"Alan," Barbara's voice was tremulous with the tragedy of youth. "I don't suppose you'll ever want to come and see me again—and I don't blame you if you don't. But instead of feeling humiliated now when I go out, and as if everybody knew how Mr. Appleby treated me, and was saying it served me right for thinking I could go around with that summer visitor crowd, I feel sort of like—well, like a princess who has some one to avenge every insult. Thank you, Alan."

No knight ever yet fought to gain his lady's gratitude who was not embarrassed by its expression. Alan grinned a bit sheepishly. "I say, Bab," he said, "I've got to be going. Got to attend to business now. Dad's going to take me into partnership with him next month—he's been doing fine lately." Alan turned to the door and opened it. "Good-bye, Bab." But his hand lingered on the knob.

A small voice from the middle of the floor spoke diffidently: "Coming up tonight, Alan?"

"Sure—if you want me to. But you've got to make up your mind for good and all, I'm not going to be thrown over that way the second time." The mastery of the fighting scale was in his voice, and Barbara made answer meekly:

"I'm never going to like any one as well as you, Alan."

SIR T. WHITE ON THE QUESTION OF GRATUITIES

CALLED TO ELUCIDATE DEPUTY MINISTER'S STATEMENT BY G.W.V.A. SECRETARY.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—A further statement of the difficulties facing the government which make payment of $200,000,000 or more in gratuities a difficult matter for the administration to face, was placed before the special committee on soldiers' civil re-establishment this afternoon, by Sir Thomas White, former minister of finance.

During the morning session Mr. McNeil, G.W.V.A. secretary had complained that while the evidence of T. C. Boyle, deputy minister of finance was very well in its way, it was too technical and complicated for the man in the street to fathom, and he asked that some one be called who could elucidate. The result was the attendance of Sir Thomas White this afternoon.

The former minister of finance was calling attention to the many heavy expenditures which the government was called upon to face from the forthcoming victory loan. Without any new debts being incurred, the major portion of this loan would be taken up in bank debt and other obligations.

COUNTRY'S POSITION. "Canada's financial position," he said, "while it should not be called critical, is still serious because of five years' war expenditure to call for most careful administration."

"The policy of all nations which were belligerents will be toward retrenchment for the next few years."

In regard to the forthcoming loan, Sir Thomas said he had no misgivings. It would probably be well over subscribed, but he could see that from present indications, a further loan would be necessary next year. Canada had had to borrow money to finance purchases by Britain and her allies in order that Canada's own trade might not suffer.

"I do not see how it would be possible for the government to raise any such further sum as is suggested if its credit is to be maintained," said Sir Thomas. The ex-minister expressed the view that should the government decide to grant a large amount of additional aid to soldiers, the money would mostly have to be produced by domestic loans.

TRIP TO SPRINGS WAS A FAILURE

CROSSED CONTINENT SEEKING HEALTH BUT CAME HOME DISCOURAGED.

"I really crossed the continent—went from Calgary to Hot Springs, Arkansas and back—trying to get relief from my troubles, but nothing helped me until I took Tanlac," said Mrs. Jessie E. Morgan, wife of a wealthy farmer living fifteen miles north of Calgary, Alberta.

"Rheumatism has kept me crippled up for the past three years," she continued. "Not a day or a night passed that I haven't had terrible pains running all through my lower limbs, and at times my feet would swell until I could hardly get a shoe on. I took all sorts of medicines that were recommended for rheumatism. They tore my stomach up so that I got to the place where I could hardly eat anything without suffering misery for hours afterwards. When my appetite left me and I began to suffer so badly from indigestion, I began to lose weight and got weaker every day. At night I would be so nervous and restless that I couldn't sleep and I couldn't find any relief. I went to Hot Springs, Arkansas, and took the baths there, but came home as bad a shape as ever. Then I heard Tanlac recommended so highly, and as I had taken nearly everything else I thought I might as well try it too."

"I really took Tanlac hoping that it would straighten out my stomach, but didn't think it would help the rheumatism too, but it was one of the happiest surprises I ever had when I found that after my stomach began to get better, the rheumatism was relieved. I kept on taking Tanlac and after a five weeks' treatment, I am not bothered any more by either the indigestion nor the rheumatism. My appetite is wonderful and I can just eat anything I want and digest it. I can tell by the way my clothes fit me that I have gained several pounds in weight and I just feel myself getting stronger every day. My nerves are as steady as a rock, I sleep eight or nine hours every night and I only regret that I didn't know of Tanlac sooner, as it would have saved me a whole world of suffering and misery."

Tanlac is sold in Red Deer by Gatz-Cornett Drug & Book Co., in Stettler by the Palace Pharmacy, Ltd. in Delburne by Eckville Drug Co., in Delburne by E. J. Hodge, and in Hespero by Macdonnell Bros.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Education Department Officers Visit Red Deer

Mr. D. A. Campbell, director of Technical Education, Department of Education, Edmonton, and Mr. E. Pearson, Supervisor of Manual Training, Calgary, were in Red Deer on Friday interviewing the Board of Education to the prospects of introducing the teaching of manual training and domestic science in the city schools. The Board took up the matter this morning with the Lacombe School Board, and a tentative arrangement was entered into, but when the Red Deer Board was contacted with an architect's estimate of $26,000 for a suitable building for the new arts, the Board quit then and there, a new High School will eventually be in demand. The Department officials hoped on Friday to devise some other method of providing accommodation, and getting the work started.

By means of official visits and through large grants from the Provincial treasury the Department of Education is hoping to encourage local school boards to undertake and to expand instruction along industrial, technical and commercial lines. It is intended to bring about a re-orientation of the existing school system in order that the youth of the province may be placed in an advantageous position in the new development and expansion which is coming to the West. These grants are given for salaries of teachers and for equipment and should assist materially in the initial stages of development of a progressive programme of education along scientific, commercial and technical lines. The Department pays 50 per cent of salaries and travelling expenses of teachers, and 50 per cent of the cost of equipment.

It is not proposed to interfere with the good work being done in existing schools, but every effort will be made to encourage progressive schools to provide facilities in the existing or in new schools so that the youth of the province will have that type of training which is fundamental to them when they are called upon later to take their place in the industrial and trade world. Another method can be adopted for the root crops where conditions permit; by digging a hole in the floor, thus bringing the vegetables in touch with nature by bringing them in contact with mother earth, covering them over with one or two pieces of burlap. The temperature will determine the amount of burlap necessary to cover them with, if covering is not sufficient the vegetables will wilt from the heat, if too much is used they will sweat from lack of breathing space and soon start drip from the ventilators to fall on the floor; and by giving the cold air, a greater amount of cubic space to mingle with the warm air before it comes in contact with the vegetables.

It is well to have an entrance to the root-house at least ten or twelve feet long, in the form of an arch or tunnel, and the entrance should be covered. One can then safely enter the root-house under a blanket of earth. The end of the root-house near the door is the weakest, and it is a good piece of advice to have a small opening in the wall, near the door, to give a touch of frost vent to them any harm.

Very large quantities of potatoes are kept it is safer to put them in pits a week or ten days, in the cold before starting them away. This allows them to sweat and dry up again before being placed in bulk. If grain is stacked before it is properly cured it commences to heat, and deteriorates in value; pretty much the same thing applies to vegetables.

Many people have trouble in keeping carrots as they are often allowed to stay in the ground till they are too ripe. Unlike potatoes, they keep better if pulled while still and are not too ripe. Beets may be harvested much the same way, but care should be taken to cut the tops off before putting them away, as they are easily bleached.

Parsnips are generally the last crop to take up, and they are hard to get out of the ground. They stand the winter fairly well and a few might be allowed to stay in the ground for early spring use. However, they must not be allowed to stay in the ground in the ground in spring, as they become poisonous if allowed to start up strong growth, and to use them in that condition has been known to prove fatal.

Turnips keep best with the roots on, but the tops must not be cut too close to the crown, or they are liable to go wrong. It is necessary to pile them in the field if the weather is not too cold it will benefit them to lie a day or two in the rows after being pulled up.

Onions might be pulled and placed over a row of straw, and covered with a layer of straw ten days. The tops of some of them by this time will be all swollen and ready to eat. They are better allowed to remain if not dry, and tied in small bunches, two on a string, each bunch having about eight or ten onions. The bunches can then be hung over a pole so as to allow thorough circulation around each bunch or they will go bad.

Cabbage should be pulled when dry and the rough outer leaves taken off. They can either be hung up by the root or placed on slatted shelves, and if plenty of space is available they will keep better not to touch each other.

Coley may be dug with dirt adhering to the roots and roots may be watered on top as they are liable to become dry, and should be covered with straw or hay.

The fruits of the earth all respond to good treatment, and with a little care and attention they will have good vegetables all the year round.

PUBLIC SCHOOL BOARD

At the regular meeting of the Red Deer Public School Board on Wednesday evening, there were present Mr. Gies, chairman; Mr. Payne, Dr. Parsons, Mr. Stephens, Mr. Walton, secretary-treasurer; Principal Brodie, and Mr. Principal Foster.

Mr. Reg. Taylor asked the use of the Assembly hall for practice by young men of an opera company, who were devoted to local charities. Granted.

Lethbridge school board asked for Red Deer's teachers' wages. $294.00. Havelock Sloan was appointed caretaker of the North Ward School at $20 per month.

The Finance committee will distribute the fire insurance money among city agents in British and Canadian companies.

The Board will procure paper towels for the lavatories.

The following accounts were passed for payment: Alberta Government Telephone, $7.00; Gies-Corlett Co., $1.00; City of Red Deer, water rates, $1.00; M. J. Meyer & Co., desks, $231.50; R. H. Welliver, insurance, $75; Payne & Graham, telegraph, $12.00; L. Lewis, 25; News Publishing Co., paper, etc., $25.50; Manning-Stratford Lumber Co., 56; City of Red Deer, water rates, $17.50; A. G. Bullock, freight and cartage, $14.00; John Malcolm Co., insurance, $27.50; Day Hardware Co., $3.30.

Report on Additional School

Mr. Payne and the chairman reported concerning additional school accommodation for manual training and domestic science classes, etc. The Parish Hall and the Alexandra Hotel were reported on as to purchase, rental, accommodation inside and outside with other particulars. In case of the use of the Parish Hall, a manual training building frame would have to be built north of the school. The Board had a special meeting on receipt of further information.

The Principal's Report

Principal Brodie's report showed 561 pupils in attendance during the month of September. The average attendance was 512.8. Miss Munro being high with 98. The register shows that on September, 1918, was 523. The High School registration was 125, as compared with 94 in September, 1918. There were 36 High School students' whose homes were not in Red Deer. No qualified student for minor alterations in the rooms: some cleanings was also needed.

Mr. Jones, of the Overseas Club, Mr. Ramsey and Mr. Pearson, Manual Training Work Department of Edmonton, and Trustee Weston were visitors. The minor alterations suggested by Mr. Brodie will be attended to. Mr. Fowler said their fire drill emptied the central school in 52 seconds. The Board adjourned at 10 o'clock.

SAW CRUCIFIED CANADIAN

Among the first St. Catharines Ont. men to leave for the front was one of the last to get back, Lieut. T. Edward Jones, of that city, has arrived home.

"I saw the first Canadian they crucified," said he. "He was a sergeant of the 15th Machine-Gun Battalion, and he was in April, 1915. There was no support and they drove us back a mile and a half. The Germans captured this poor fellow and pinned him to a barn door. They ran one of their saw-pyons through his stomach and they planned his wrists and legs with Ross rifle Canadian bayonet."

"Do you suppose he was alive when they crucified him?" he was asked.

"I certainly do, because when we got to him he was still bleeding," was the lieutenant's reply.

The Aftermath of Action

(By Henry Chas. Suter)

THE VETERAN

He had been home some months, honorably discharged with wounds, and after resting a while went to his old plant and sought reinstatement. The manager received him gladly, and the employers gripped him by the hand and welcomed him back heartily.

He got out of his uniform, took of the sight of it, but never got out of the scrape of the strife of Flanders. He wanted to forget it, he tried to forget it, but could not forget it. The nights of hell haunted him like a nightmare and its days of horror recurred and taunted him with a terrible reminder of the past.

He possessed his system of a strange uneasiness, like the restlessness of the soldier who is never at ease, and he possessed his system of a strange uneasiness, like the restlessness of the soldier who is never at ease, and he possessed his system of a strange uneasiness, like the restlessness of the soldier who is never at ease.

has been torn at last from its hideous face. We see war for what it really is. War is hell but Tom, when I think of the spirit of our young students who responded to the call of need, why, that is something else, it is heaven. This is the acid of our sorrow, and it cuts deep into our souls, but out of the travail of all this struggle and strife I see a new England, a new Canada, a new Europe, a new world do you get that? Tom? If you do you have dreams that shall never die, you may keep your hands and ideals, yes, you may keep everything in that thought, Tom, yes, everything—even your dreams."

JAPANESE ACTIVE IN ARGENTINA

Washington, District of Columbia.—Information has been received here of the activity of the Japanese in Argentina. The recently created Japanese legation in Buenos Ayres is promoting interest in commercial circles in Japanese merchandise, and representatives of important Japanese business houses have been in Argentina making banking and commercial connections. The vice-president of the Tokio Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Yamashita, has been cordially received by President Iriyogen and other government officials.

In an interview in La Razon Mr. Yamashita declared that Japan is in a position to provide Argentina with cotton goods and dyestuffs which had always in the past reached it through French concerns. The Argentine Republic, on the other hand, can provide Japan with products and goods which are indispensable to the Japanese people.

THE DREAMS THAT DO NOT DIE

They had been students together in the old, old days ere they enlisted and they recalled some of their doings at the university in their conversation. They were now on leave, and had wandered back to the vicinity of the college walls, when one remarked to the other, "Say, Tom, everything is here as in our old student days."

"Yes," responded Tom, "everything except our dreams, except our dreams." The other was startled at Tom's reply and sought further argument to substantiate Tom's statement. For Tom recognized that war was a shatterer of dreams, ideals that were fair and good had been crushed beneath its cruel blows and war was the real spoiler. This was the great disillusionment, and life's biggest bankruptcy, for they had lived through the whirl of fire and earthquake, and the land of fairy dreams had become submerged. He recalled many students who had gone to war, men who had minds of poets, and eyes of seers and hearts of lovers, now silent and still on the fields of Flanders. Men who could play with exquisite touch the strings of a violin and those fingers now clutching the trigger and barrel of a rifle, spitting forth death and desolation.

The slow labor of yards in architecture and costly achievements in science and nobler treasures of art were being demolished. Why? War had robbed us of our literature, our songs, our music, all were now set to the story of struggle and death. Why? War could destroy almost everything. Why practice false-belief when the morning is full of the cannon's roar and the evening the moaning of stricken and dying men. Then there is the heartbroken child who has seen his father and mother killed, and the orphaned child who has seen his father and mother killed, and the orphaned child who has seen his father and mother killed.

Mr. Brodie's second bill amends the act in aid of provincial legislation as to make its provisions extend to not only the importation of liquor but to manufacture within the province of liquor to be introduced. The other provision of the bill re-introduces a clause which was contained in the original bill as it was passed by the House of Commons. The clause is somewhat modified, which it is hoped will make it acceptable. It provides that the vendor of the provisions of the act may be tried for the offence either in the province into which the liquor was sent or in the province in which the offence was actually committed. There is the provision that the clause will be operative only on the flat of the prohibition provisions.

DOMINION PROHIBITION BILLS INTRODUCED

Ottawa, Oct. 7.—Hon. Mr. Doherty, by unanimous consent, introduced in the House this morning the two prohibition bills. The first bill amends the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act so as to make it possible that upon a plebiscite vote of the voters of an entire province—which plebiscite would be taken upon a petition based on a resolution of the legislative assembly—that if the majority of the electors declare they desire importation of liquor into that province or manufacture of liquor in that province or both, to be absolutely prohibited, then under the provisions of the bill manufacture or importation of liquor will be prohibited by proclamation.

In effect the bill extends the principle of the Canadian Temperance Act so as to enable the majority of the electors of the province to place importation under absolute prohibition.

Mr. Brodie's second bill amends the act in aid of provincial legislation as to make its provisions extend to not only the importation of liquor but to manufacture within the province of liquor to be introduced. The other provision of the bill re-introduces a clause which was contained in the original bill as it was passed by the House of Commons. It provides that the vendor of the provisions of the act may be tried for the offence either in the province into which the liquor was sent or in the province in which the offence was actually committed. There is the provision that the clause will be operative only on the flat of the prohibition provisions.

Wash Day

CONNOR ELECTRIC

Did you ever stop to think that health is an all important factor. Then why live in fear and trembling from one wash day to another remembering what that day will bring forth. Why not let a Connor do your washing. But, you say, who is Connor. Connor is a power washing machine, either for Gasoline or Electricity. Good health is worth more than the cost of a washer. Wash day will be a pleasure and you will feel one hundred per cent better. Come to our store and see these washers for yourselves. All moving parts covered. Swinging wringer works perfectly wherever you put it. It is controlled by separate lever that operates the rolls in either direction, or shuts power off entirely if desired. Clothes may be wrung through the wringer while the machine is washing thus saving time as well as labor. Connor Electric Washer, $100.00. Connor Gasoline Power Washer, same as above, operates wringer as well as washer, Price $50.00.

"SHE withstood everything in the field and above all was, and still is, the last and only car to survive until the cessation of hostilities."—Extract from a letter received by Ford Motor Company from a British Soldier, in Africa.

Over shell-torn roads, through water soaked fields, second only to the tanks in its power to climb debris and crater holes, the Ford car made a world famous record in the fighting area of the great war. In press despatches, in field reports, in letters, in rhyme and song the praises of the Ford were sounded.

In France - 700 cars out of 1,000 were Fords
In Italy - 850 cars out of 1,000 were Fords
In Egypt - 550 cars out of 1,000 were Fords
In Mesopotamia - 850 cars out of 1,000 were Fords

The Ford power plant that established this world-wide record in every theatre of the war remains the same. It will be in the Ford you buy.

CHIROPRACTORS FIGHT FOR RECOGNITION

AGGRESSIVE CAMPAIGN IN VIEW OF COMING SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

Determined to fight for legal recognition of their profession, and confident that already they have a large measure of public support, chiropractors of Alberta, convened in the Palliser hotel, Calgary, a few days ago, planned an aggressive campaign for the promotion of the necessary legislation at the next session of the house. Members expressed the opinion that the bill of incorporation, rejected last session, will meet with much more favorable consideration when it comes before the legislature again. They appointed Dr. J. C. Parks, Dr. (Mrs.) Boyle of Calgary, Dr. L. D. Clancy of Medicine Hat, Dr. Lawrence of Edmonton, and Dr. Bates, a committee to speak at meetings of U.P.A. locals and of all other public bodies which are interested in questions of public health. Support for the bill will be sought at the next meeting of the executive board of the U.P.A. on Nov. 11. The meeting also appointed Dr. C. E. Messenger, secretary of the Chiropractic association, representative at the convention of the Alberta Federation of Labor to be held in Medicine Hat in January. Dr. Duval of the Canadian school of chiropractic, will tour the province in the interests of the profession, and will be associated with Dr. L. A. Lawrence of Edmonton, chairman of the legislative committee, in promoting the bill of incorporation. Dr. John T. Harris, of Edmonton, spoke hopefully of the future of the profession in this province. The next meeting of the association will be held in Edmonton.

INDIGNANT AT MEDICOS
While discussion of the attitude of the medical profession to chiropractors was temperate in tone, the meeting by resolution, expressed their strong indignation that the Alberta Medical Association should have published in the telephone directory an advertisement of false statements concerning the qualifications of chiropractors. In this advertisement, intended to discredit chiropractors, it was stated that the Palmer school of chiropractic required of its graduating students only 45 hours before graduation. According to Dr. Hauke, a recent graduate from the school, every student must spend 2,375 hours in the study of his profession before a diploma will be granted. The publication of the medical men's advertisement was denounced as an unscrupulous attempt to injure the chiropractors by the use of false evidence against them. The advertisement was also condemned as a misleading summary of the subjects of study at the chiropractic schools. "We carry as many subjects as the medical men do in their course," declared Dr. Lawrence. "The only difference is that on their list such subjects as anatomy are divided under the heading of the various branches of the study." The legislative committee was instructed to take necessary steps to bring to the attention of members both the subjects taught and the number of hours required for graduation.

"The medical men in their advertisement do not cite the number of hours or study now required in approved schools of chiropractic," declared Dr. Parks, "but the number which were required 12 years ago, when our profession was in its infancy."

OPPOSE VACCINATION
Launching of an aggressive campaign against vaccination was advocated by Dr. Parks. He declared that the great majority of the people would support the chiropractors in opposition to this practice, and that this form of propaganda would prove of decided value in promoting the interests of the profession. Dr. Bonnell will deliver a paper on vaccination and inoculation at the next meeting of the association, when papers on the following subjects will also be delivered: "Acute Diseases and Chiropractic," by Dr. Clancy; "Chiropractic and the Flu Question," by Dr. (Miss Maxwell); "The Efficiency of X-rays for Assistance in Chiropractic," by Dr. Bates, and "Curvature of the Spine."

CAN'T AFFILIATE WITH LABOR

That the Chiropractic association cannot affiliate with the Alberta Federation of Labor, because the association is not a trades union, was the report of Dr. Clancy. The association, however, was invited to send a representative. Dr. Messenger suggested that labor had to some extent alienated public sympathy and that the association might do well not to concern themselves further in this matter. "The question is," said Dr. Lawrence, "whether labor and chiropractic may not mutually assist one another. If we can be of benefit to the unions we ought to send someone down. I think we have a message which we can send down to them."

Reporting for the legislative committee, Dr. Lawrence declared that many members of the assembly formerly opposed to the chiropractors' bill, had changed their opinion. They believed they would experience no difficulty in getting the bill through at the next session. Speaking of the complaint of the medical men that the chiropractors who had had a three years' course could not be so competent as the medical practitioners who had six, he declared that in the study of medicine much time was wasted in learning Latin and Greek, which were not needed in Chiropractic. The time spent in the study of hours or study now required in approved schools of chiropractic, declared Dr. Parks, "but the number which were required 12 years ago, when our profession was in its infancy."

The proceedings were concluded by a banquet in the Palliser hotel in the evening, attended by a score of chiropractors from every quarter of the province, who, with the press, were entertained as the guests of Dr. Messenger, Davies and Parks.

Everyone Who Bought
Canada's Victory Bonds
Made Money.....

EVERY one of the million and a half subscribers to Canada's Victory Bonds knows that he can sell them today for more than he paid for them.

Every one who bought Canada's Victory Bonds has received 5½ per cent. interest per annum—paid twice a year.

Over half a million Canadians who bought Canada's Victory Bonds on the instalment plan saved money that they would not otherwise have saved.

The guarantee back of Canada's Victory Bonds is the same as the guarantee back of a One Dollar or a Two Dollar bill. There is this difference, however, that you get interest on the Victory Bonds and you don't on the One or Two Dollar bill.

Canada's Victory Bonds will always be accepted as security for a loan.

Banks are ready to loan money on Canada's Victory Bonds.

Canada's Victory Bonds may be turned into cash at any time.

There is no other way in which you can invest your money with such absolute security—paying such a good rate of interest.

Canada will soon give her citizens an opportunity to buy Victory Bonds 1919. It will probably be the last chance to buy Canada's Victory Bonds on such favorable terms.

Prepare to buy as many Victory Bonds this time as you now wish you had been able to buy the last time

BIG PROFITS
ON CLOTHING IN TORONTO

Immediate Action Is To Be Taken By Commerce Board To Regulate Prices.

Toronto, October 8.—Immediate and effective action to regulate clothing prices was forecasted by Commissioner Murdoch, of the commerce board at the conclusion of the board's investigation into clothing prices here this afternoon. Colonel W. H. Price, government counsel, had addressed the commissioner, calling attention to evidence which he said warranted action on the part of the board, and Commissioner Murdoch replied: "I am firmly convinced that something should be done to reduce the price of clothing, and so far as I am concerned, as one member, I will hope to see something done promptly and effectively."

Commissioner Murdoch said he concurred in Colonel Price's declaration that there had been too much profit made by some of the clothing houses whose affairs had been investigated. "And I am further of the opinion," he went on, "that there is more than net profit involved, that there is real net profit to some extent hidden in certain other items referred to in a general way as overhead. I think the people of the country demand, and are entitled, to a change in the situation."

Later on the chairman suggested: "If the business houses generally that have been to some extent under investigation will co-operate with the board themselves and at the same time co-operate with the public and in the interest of their customers, we may go some reasonable distance towards the desired end of correcting the existing situation at this time."

Colonel Price, in summing up the clothing situation as revealed in the investigation here, referred to the big profits made by the manufacturers and dealers, and said to Commissioner Murdoch: "You will notice that the cost to the consumer is, in nearly every case, nearly 100 per cent. over what it cost to produce the article."

BELA KUN'S TORTURE SYSTEM

The necessity of justice in tracking down Bohemians is amply proved by the police minutes of the preliminary examination of Otto Corvin, chief of the Political Investigation Department under Bela Kun, according to the minutes Corvin admitted that he was personally responsible for the designation of 500 political suspects done to death, and for the maltreatment of many others who were tortured in a specially fitted chamber in the cellars of the parliament buildings.

One favorite device was to fix a gag in the prisoner's mouth and to put lighted tapers into his throat until he confessed knowledge of counter-revolutionary plans, or agreed to pay a large sum of money. The lighted taper was sometimes replaced by a dagger. Another torture was to place before a bourgeois prisoner portions of a human body, cut off another victim, and to offer him the choice of a form of dismemberment unless he made confession or paid blackmail. Corvin is quoted in the same minutes as saying that the plans for this terrorism were arranged a year ago at Moscow.

Another diabolical agent, Gabor Schon, who has fortunately been captured, used to pull out the gold-filled teeth of wealthy bourgeois in the style of King John, without an anaesthetic. The bodies of all these murdered persons used to be hung into the Danube by night.—London Times.

TO HIGHEST BIDDER

There was no specially sentimental reason why Dexter should have felt interested in the final fate of the Windygoose estate, yet as he saw the broad advertisement of the local auctioneer in the little weekly paper he felt a peculiar twinge of what some have called heart strings.

After breakfast he took the small chummy roadster and made the three and one-half mile run along the shore road to the grounds.

There was an arched stone gateway at the entrance on the side road and he left the car there and went up the winding drive alone.

It was a large, square house, built in the Italian villa style, with a projecting tile roof and iron wrought balconies with tumbling masses of clambering vines and flowers. The view out to sea was splendid.

In the gardens that dipped in four wide terraces to the beach he found everything overgrown and neglected; even the two statues on their pedestals looked forlorn—a stooping Mercury lacking his sandals and a questioning Echo.

Dexter made up his mind he would put in a bid for this place simply because he liked it. Not to rent.

He did not have to commercialize his tastes. He would put old Jerry in as caretaker, with his wife. It was more than anything else, the wish to save the beauty of the old place from the hands of vandals who would not see it.

And here he turned the corner of the path and found a girl watching him intently from the summer house. She was a stranger to him and to the village, he knew. Tall and slender and dark, with the look of a startled child.

Her wide-brimmed hat was of dark blue straw and she wore a sweeping dark blue travelling cloak capped in military style. The two gazed at each other in surprised silence for a moment and then she beckoned to him to approach. Not in a friendly manner, but seriously.

"When are you going to sell this place?"

"I'm not going to sell it at all. I intend to buy it," she said abruptly, one foot on the lower step of the summer house. "I am not the auctioneer. My name is Dexter."

She frowned and looked at his appearance inspired confidence for, after a quick second glance, she explained:

"I have come from Italy. This was my father's house. Perhaps you know of him?"

Dexter's eyes were steady and keen. He knew more of Seward Coates than his daughter did, he fancied. Impudent, extravagant, lovable, he had descended on Wahasset years before, built his house on the cliffs and spent two summers there before going abroad. The estate was to be sold at auction now, he understood, for accumulated family taxes.

"My father is dead," she added, without emotion. "He was in the war. My mother is very beautiful, but she had no heart for business, so I am managing things now."

Dexter nodded his head gravely. She was deeply in earnest, and he wondered if the mother could be any lovelier than she herself.

"We do not wish to sell Windygoose at all. I shall pay the taxes and live here. I do not wonder my father loved it. It is a place to forget war and trouble and death, isn't it? I do not care to leave it at all."

"Don't, then," he said quickly. "Let me send you a couple of competent, trustworthy old helpers, and pay off these taxes, and look out for things for you. I know your father, and I have several of his paintings myself. I should be glad, indeed, to have you for a neighbor."

He left her still in the old summer house, resting, roses in her lap and peace in her dark eyes. Before sundown, old Jerry, and Roxy, his wife, were installed, and a telegram had come back from Boston, announcing that Mrs. Coates would arrive in the morning. Dexter reviewed his day's activities and laughed to himself.

"Eyes like a brown moth's wing," he said, slowly, "and her name is Francesca. I wonder if Seward Coates' rambling spirit brought her back to the rose garden by the sea for safety's sake?"

He leaned back his head in the deep leather chair, thinking how as a youngster he had loved to visit Coates, and how good he had been to the boy who admired his work and adventurous life.

Now there would be no auction, no wiping out of the old story, no packing away of the paintings from the broad low walls. He sent off a telegram over the telephone wire to the little station, saying he would not return to New York for two months and stood on his own veranda until midnight, smoking and watching one lone light over at the house on the cliff.

It was six weeks later. He was busy writing about dusk in the living room when suddenly Francesca stepped into the room from the long windows that opened on the veranda.

She had a lace scarf around her head and was out of breath. She held crumpled in her hand a long folded paper and handed it to him with eyes that sparkled tragically.

"I found that in his desk. Of course we did not know. We will leave at once, my mother says, and we apologize."

He opened and read it, inwardly cursing the big hearted irresponsibility of Coates. Unreservedly he gave Windygoose, in the event of his death, to "my very dear friend and neighbor, Courtney Dexter, who appreciates it as I do."

"But this is not legal," he protested. "It is not even witnessed. Don't think of that at all. You know and I know your father was impulsive and erratic."

She raised her hand to stop him. "I would obey anything at all he told me to do. This is his writing, and we were nearer to each other than you could ever know, Mr. Dexter."

Dexter looked at her with sudden intensity and longing. Since she would stand firm, then he would tell her. He crossed to his desk, hunted in the long centre drawer, and found Seward Coates' last letter to him, written from Sorrento before he went to the front. He gave it to her and watched her face as she read it.

"For death is nothing but a transition to higher beauty, but for those we love it is tragedy. So I am asking you to meet and know my daughter, Francesca. To me she is the flower of life, and of all men I have known, I would entrust her happiness to you most of all. This is merely a shot into the blue from a troubled mind, yet what is to be will be. I salute you with all good wishes and remembrances."

"Coates."

There was a deep silence in the quiet room, Francesca had covered her face with her hands. He drew her hand to his shoulder tenderly.

"I would not beg you to marry me for the world, even though she wished it, if you did not love me yourself. Windygoose was to go to the highest bidder. And love took it." He waited, but she was still silent, only he felt her lean closer to him. He lifted the lace scarf and laid it about her shoulders.

"We'll take the cliff path home through the twilight," he told her. "I've always wished you were with me."

She watched him while he laid the two papers back in the long drawer and locked it. He smiled back at her, and gave her the key, and they passed on the veranda together.

BRUMPTON & GAETZ, Limited

Is there anyone to whom the beautiful does not make an appeal? We doubt if there is. To some the appeal may be greater than to others, but every human being has that within them which is awakened and quickened by the beautiful, whether it be in the field of literature or painting, a soft summer sunset or some production of the manual arts. In our Footwear Department we are showing a Cordovan Laced Boot for Men that will appeal at once to the artistic in anyone who sees it. Some may scoff at "Art" in a pair of men's shoes, but we can make the scoffers penitent if they will permit us to show them this creation. It sells for $15.00, but it costs absolutely nothing to see it. Why, therefore deny yourself the pleasure of a look.

The Innisfail Province says: The Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, accompanied by General Stewart, spent a day here last week. Arriving in their private car, they went immediately to the Little Red Deer district, where James Milligan, manager of the Duke's extensive holdings here, did the honors of the day. The party expressed themselves as highly delighted with the district and the general condition of the crops.

Major Horace Meeres has resigned his position under the Soldiers' Settlement Board and taken up a first class farm a mile out of Conder under the Soldiers' Settlement plan. Mrs. Meeres will move out this week with the family. John Ross has rented Mr. Meeres' residence. The citizens of Red Deer will regret to lose Mr. and Mrs. Meeres and the family and will wish them all success in their new home.

W. R. Davis has a remarkable gun which he claims is worth $100. No, we didn't leave the period cat, and mean $800. The gun is an Ithaca, and is made in the United States. It is no doubt a marvellous shooting iron. It has a gold trigger and is beautifully engraved, and inlaid with gold in the shape of an eagle, a deer's head and some game birds. Every modern improvement seems to be contained in the gun for accurate shooting. Mr. Davis says Fred Lund offered him a new Ford for it, but he turned the offer down. It is especially made for trap shooting.

Settlement followed a meeting between Prime Minister Lloyd-George and members of the executive board of the national union of railwaymen, which was arranged at last night's conference between Andrew Bonar Law and the conciliation committee of trades unions.

The official terms of the settlement are as follows:

1. Work shall be resumed immediately.

2. Negotiations will be resumed on the understanding that they shall be completed before the end of the year.

3. Wages shall be stabilized at the present level until September 26, 1920, and at any time after August 1, they may be reviewed in the light of circumstances then existing.

4. No adult railwaymen in Great Britain shall receive less than 51 shillings per week, while the cost of living is 110 per cent above the pre-war level.

5. The railway union agrees that their men will work harmoniously with men who returned to work or who remained at work during the strike. No shall there be any victimization of strikers.

6. Arrears of wages will be paid on resumption of work.

The terms of the settlement are in the nature of a compromise.

The settlement was the result of a long conference today between a trade union delegation, including representatives of the railwaymen's union, Premier Lloyd-George and Andrew Bonar Law, prior to this there was a cabinet meeting.

Labor Leaders Opposed Sympathetic Strike

It is conceded on all sides that the settlement is the outcome of the efforts of the executive of the transport workers' federation and men like Arthur Henderson and John H. Clynes, who throughout have not their faces steadily against the idea of a sympathetic strike until every possible avenue of mediation had been exhausted.

Jim Krause, of Westward Ho Creamery, near Oids, and Miss Rose Krause, were home for Thanksgiving with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krause.

A QUESTION FOR EVERY CITIZEN.

Mr. Citizen, in a few weeks you will be asked to subscribe to the Victory Loan, 1919.

If you are proud of your Empire, love your country, your home and your fellow citizens, the slightest doubt that your response to this appeal will be ready and generous.

Let your investment in the coming Victory Loan be the measure of your indebtedness to the brave 60,000 Canadian soldiers who made the supreme sacrifice upon the battlefield of France and Flanders in order that the world would be a safe place in which to live for you and your family.
